HAPPY HALLOWEEN

HALLOWEENS VENUE HAS ALL BUT CHANGED

When I was a kid, and all through high school and beyond it was quite different.

The norm back then was to go house to house "Trick-or-Treating" and the result was bunches of candy.

After all that "work" you felt like you really earned all that candy. But today, the venue is not the house of everyone as much but rather big parking lots where "TRUNK-OR-TREAT" events are held.

These are maybe overall safer perhaps but certainly different than back in the day. I mean, all the candy is centrally located in one spot in everyone's car trunk or truck bed. That would have been freaking AWESOME! Sorry, another childhood flashback, again.

There are also more "Haunted Houses" that are available for kids to go to as it is a much bigger money making deal. Whatever the venue, it is still sorta fun to scare the children.

NEW FORMAT FOR COMJUKA NEWS ISSUES

From now on we will only maintain the current years for issues. This is the new format and is frankly more fun for me to publish. So I hope you like the new pdf format. These newsletters you can easily save if you choose to do so. It's an electronic age now so I am trying to adapt, improvise and overcome.

TWENTY THREE DAYS

until Thanksgiving. It's that time when many of us overindulge until misery because the feast is sooooo good. I'm just really glad we are at the top of the food chain as they say.

So many tasty carcass treats and on Thanksgiving sometimes we get turkey AND ham. WOHO!

Until next time ~
